Teach children money skills

Children don't learn money management skills in school. It's up to parents to teach their children — and it's one of the most valuable lessons you can pass on.

Begin money lessons when your children are young. Age 3 is when children begin understanding money concepts. By age 7, many of their money habits are already set, according to PBS News.

The best way for children to learn about money is for you to help them set goals and learn to save. Sacramento Credit Union offers Share Savings youth accounts for children and teens up to age 18.

Our youth savings account offers:

- No minimum balance requirement
- No monthly service charge until the account holder reaches age 18
- Access to more than 30,000 ATMs through the nationwide CO-OP Network

Get started today! Parents can help their children open an account at any SCU branch. These are the requirements:

- Birth certificate and Social Security card required for those under 13
- Parent or legal guardian must be a joint owner
- $30 minimum deposit (includes a $5 one-time membership fee)

Children over age 13 must provide a Social Security card along with one of the following items:

- School ID
- Government ID, including US Passport
- Driver's license
